Business Accounts will be designated as those entities that utilize commercial water per the National Handbook of Recommended Methods for Water Data Acquisition published by the USGS. The definition of commercial water use as follows:

Commercial water use includes water used by commercial facilities such as hotels, motels, restaurants, office buildings, government and military facilities, hospitals, educational institutions, and retail sales stores. Commercial water use in office buildings primarily is used for sanitation, maintenance, and aesthetic appeal. Specific uses of water include toilet flushing, air-conditioning, washing floors and other surfaces, fountains and lawn watering . . . Commercial activities also take place in institutions, such as hospitals, prisons, and schools; and in resorts; hotels; motels; camp grounds; and restaurants, therefore, commercial uses of water also includes food preparation, pools, and laundries.
